Bid for ICDAR 2015

Institution: REsearch Group on Intelligent Machines (REGIM)

City: Tunis -TUNISIA

Date: September, 27-30, 2015

1. Venue

The venue for the ICDAR'2015 Conference will be in Tunis, Tunisia during 27-30 September 2015. In turn suburbs of powerful Carthage Romain counter, capital of the Hafside Empire, then of regency Ottoman, Tunis, capital of modern Tunisia, are the incarnation of its thousand-year-old history three times. Old city Médina with the ruins of the antique Carthage, Tunis extends at the edges from the Mediterranean and offers to the tourists filled with wonder the charm alluring at its balneal suburbs Sidi Bou Saïd and Gammarth. The Bardo Museum contains priceless treasures of which the most significant collection of mosaics in the world. The Tunisian Jasmin revolution, is internationally recognized to be a unique peaceful revolution. Tunisia is now a democratic modern country in which liberty, peace and safety are assured.

Most significant of the cities of Tunisia offers to its visitors the quiet charm of its balneal suburbs of Goulette with Gammarth while passing by Sidi Bousaid and Marsa, the antique coast which had been majestic Carthage is a succession of beaches, sometimes of fine sand, sometimes rock. The restaurants, the coffees, the night clubs and the beautiful districts of the Northern suburbs, make that this coast is appreciated so much by Tunisians.

Travel:

- Tunisia's main international airport for scheduled flights is Tunis-Carthage International Airport (TUN) near Tunis. ## 6. Experience in organizing major meetings

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCES

The "REGIM" organized many international conferences:

- ACIDCA-ICMI'2005, "International Conference on Machine Intelligence" Tozeur - Tunisia, Novembre 5-7, 2005. Number of participants: 220.
- SCS'2004, "International Conference Signals, Circuits & systems", Monastir - Tunisia, March, 18-21, 2004. Number of participants: 200.
- ACIDCA'2000, "Artificial and Computational Intelligence for Decision, Control and Automation in Engineering and Industrial Applications", Monastir - Tunisia, March 22-24, 2000. Number of participants: 180.

The "REGIM" participated in the program committee of various national and international conferences:

- ICDAR'2007, 2003 : "International Conference on Documents Analysis and Recognition".
- IJCNN'2005, 2004, 2003 : "International Joint Conference on Neural Networks".

- CIFED'2004, 2002, 2000: "Conférence Internationale Francophone sur l'Écrit et le Document".
- SSD'2005, 2003, 2001: "International Conference on Smart Systems and Devices".
- MCSEAI'2004, 2002: "Maghrebian Conference on Software Engineering and Artificial Intelligence".
- FUZZ-IEEE'2005, 2003: "IEEE International Conference on Fuzzy Systems".
- GFS'2005: "International Workshop on Genetic Fuzzy Systems".
- IGS'2005: "Biennial Conference of the International Graphonomics Society".
- PRemI'2005: "International Conference on Pattern Recognition and Machine Intelligence".
- ASC'2004: "International Conference on Artificial Intelligence and Soft Computing".
- ICANNGA'2003: "International Conference on Artificial Neural Networks & Genetic Algorithms".
- ICPR'2002: "International Conference on Pattern Recognition".
- IWFHR'2002: "International Workshop on Frontiers on Handwriting Recognition".

WORKSHOPS

The "REGIM" organized several intern (in Tunisia) workshops:

- WIMTA-I-2009: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Sousse, 23 - 26 March 2009. Number of participants: 150.
- WIMTA-II-2008: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Monastir, 28 - 30 December 2008. Number of participants: 150.
- WIMTA-I-2008: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Gammarth, 21 - 25 March 2008. Number of participants: 150.
- WIMTA-III-2007: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Monastir, 23 - 26 December 2007. Number of participants: 130.
- WIMTA-II-2007: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Tabarka, 05 - 08 August 2007. Number of participants: 130.
- WIMTA-I-2007: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Mahdia, 22 - 25 March 2007. Number of participants: 130.
- WIMTA-III-2006: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Sousse, 20 - 23 December 2006. Number of participants: 120.
- WIMTA-II-2006: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Gammarth, 1 - 4 September 2006. Number of participants: 120.
- WIMTA-I-2006: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Sousse, 29 April - 1 May 2006. Number of participants: 120.
- WIMTA-III-2005: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Hammamet, 19 - 21 December 2005. Number of participants: 100.
- WIMTA-II-2005: Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Mahdia, 08 - 10 July 2005. Number of participants: 100.

- WIMTA-I-2005: "Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Monastir, 31 March, 1 -2 April, 2005. Number of participants: 100.
- WIMTA-III-2004: "Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Sfax, 28 - 29 December, 2004. Number of participants: 100.
- WIMTA-II-2004: "Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Hammamet, 4 - 5 September, 2004. Number of participants: 100.
- WIMTA-I-2004: "Workshop on Intelligent Machines: Theory and Application", Sfax, 06 June, 2004. Number of participants: 100.

TRAINING SCHOOLS

The "REGIM" organized:

- EFAQE'2009: Training School on the quality assurance of waters, 26 - 29 March, 2009, Hammamet, Tunisia. Number of participants: 100.
- DAAD'2009: Training School on the way to the information society, 22 - 24 March 2009, Hammamet, Tunisia. Number of participants: 120.
- IEP'2009 : Spring village: idea Entrepreneur Project, 23 - 26 March 2009, Sousse, Tunisia. Number of participants: 110.
- EFCERT'2008: Training School on the certification of the university establishments, 26 - 28 December 2008, Monastir, Tunisia. Number of participants: 150.
- PJEDST'2008: First days of the doctoral school Sciences and Technologies, 26 - 28 December on 2008, Monastir, Tunisia. Number of participants: 140.
- RMEI'2008: General Assembly of engineering schools of Mediterranean Basin, 27 - 30 March 2008, Hammamet, Tunisia. Number of participants: 160.
- DAAD'2008: On the way to the information society, 25 - 27 March 2008, Hammamet, Tunisia. Number of participants: 100.

7. Tourism information

Tourist Information: In Tunis, 1 Avenue Mohammed V. 216-1-341-077 (Office National du Tourisme Tunisien - ONTT).

Places to go:

One hour from Hammamet, Tunis takes you by surprise with its modern conference halls, hotels and banks, bright yellow taxis rushing passengers to a business lunch, all the hustle and bustle of a modern Mediterranean city. Steel and glass blend with the baroque, palm trees look down on chic boutiques, gardens and coffees.

Begin at the monument of November 7, which marks Tunisia's turn towards the future, stroll down shady tree lined Avenue Habib Bourguiba, with its flower stands, passing bookstores and galleries. Beyond the Cathedral and the statue of Ibn Khaldoun, looms the gateway to the ancient Medina.

As you enter the narrow streets, centuries slip away and, like Alice, step into the looking glass to another world. Small shops, their treasures of brass, olive wood, leather and brightly colored garments spill out into the street. Souvenirs, antiques, berber jewelry, carpets and pottery vie for your attention. Continue, if you can resist their lures, upwards towards the Mosque of the Olive Tree, EzZitouna, as old as the town itself and the heart of the Medina.

Rebuilt in the 9th century, the EzZitouna was for centuries the focal point of life in the Arab city as urban planning decreed the order in which the different trades were placed, and the most noble, booksellers, perfumeries, dried fruits sellers and cloth merchants held the privilege of proximity to the Mosque. Today one can still see traces of this tradition -the Souk of the Perfumes, traditional clothing shops, almond and spice sellers are still located alongside its walls.

The medina, or city, is a wealth of ancient palaces, mosques and centers of trade and learning, a living museum. Dar Ben Abdullah, Dar Hussein, Dar El Bey, Dar El Jeld, Dar El Haddad, Dar Othman, once residences of wealthy traders or ministers now house cultural centers, restaurants or government agencies.

The Night in Tunis:

Tunis offers the night to you the charm of its Northern suburbs (Sidi Bou Saïd Goulette etc), the environment of its innumerable discotheques and night clubs that of its festivals as well as the spectacles of its theatres and cultural spaces.

The Northern suburbs of Tunis, of Goulette with Sidi Bou Saïd are the best place of the capital to pass the quiet and extremely pleasant evenings, at the edge of the sea, with the terrace of a typical coffee, or with that of an exotic restaurant. The discrete charm of these districts is famous in Tunisia and in all the Mediterranean basin.

A little further, towards Gammarth (and also, with the downtown area of Tunis, the discotheques and the night clubs will accomodate you until the early morning, to make you dance at the rate/rhythm the last hits, of all kinds. You also have the possibility of attending the spectacles presented at the time of the many festivals which take place in Tunis and its surroundings. Thus, for example, the international festival of Carthage is held each year of June to August, in the Roman amphitheatre of Carthage. Follow one another it of the artists and the groups of all the countries, of international fame. Other demonstrations and representations take place, in particular in the municipal theatre of the town of Tunis (with the avenue Habib Bourguiba), in the houses of culture and the antiques Diars (houses) of Médina.

Shopping in Tunis :

The shopping centres, the commercial avenues and the Souks of Médina are the best places of Tunis to make shopping. In the Souks of Médina and with Sidi Bou Saïd, you will be able to admire, and acquire the very beautiful products of the Tunisian craft industry: traditional carpets and clothing, silver jewels finely worked, elegant bags with hand or of leather voyage, plates and objects of decoration out of copper engraved, pottery, wood...

With the Avenue Habib Bourguiba, and in all the neighboring streets, of many shops propose a varied range of articles of quality going from clothing and shoes to the jewels. The shopping centers and the shopping malls of El Menzah 6, of Manar 3, Bardo as those of the Banks of the Lake gather a great number of stores which offer the same variety of products.

Historic cites of Tunis:

Its culture and records were destroyed by the Romans at the end of the Third Punic War, very few Carthaginian primary historical sources survive. While there are a few ancient translations of Punic texts into Greek and Latin, as well as inscriptions on monuments and buildings discovered in North Africa,[8] the main sources are Greek and Roman historians, including Livy, Polybius, Appian, Cornelius Nepos, Silius Italicus, Plutarch, Dio Cassius, and Herodotus. These writers belonged to peoples in competition, and often in conflict, with Carthage. Greek cities contested with Carthage for Sicily, and the Romans fought three wars against Carthage. Not surprisingly, their accounts of Carthage are extremely hostile; while there are a few Greek authors who took a favorable view, these works have been lost.

Recent excavation has brought much more primary material to light. Some of these finds contradict aspects of the traditional picture of Carthage, and much of the material is still ambiguous.
